

Applications of Mass Spectrometry for Structural Studies

Native mass spectrometry allows to study heterogeneous, flexible and dynamic multi-protein complexes, which are difficult to access by other high resolution techniques.